CANDIDATE BUTTONHOLED — Jim Host, who brought his campaign for Lt. Governor to Morgan Tuesday, was buttonholed upon his arrival by Dorsey Keeton, who offered the GOP hopeful some words of encouragement. Mr. Keeton was among some 175 persons who greeted Host and two other Republican candidates for state office at a coffee sponsored by the GOP Campaign Committee and the Morgan County Republican Woman's Club.

By 175 At Coffee
Tuesday Afternoon

Around 175 Republican Party faithful "and a few Democrats" turned out Tuesday afternoon to welcome to Morgan County the GOP nominee for Lt. Governor, Mr. Jim Host of Ashland.

Host and two other Republican hopefuls, Dick Vermillion, candidate for State Treasurer, and Ben Allen Burns, candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture, were guests at a coffee sponsored by the GOP County Committee and the Morgan County Republican Woman's Club.

Host and his runningmates were warmly welcomed upon their arrival at the West Liberty Elementary School and later all three spoke briefly in the school auditorium.

After refreshments of lemonade, coffee, and cookies were served, the candidates lingered for handshaking and chatting with the crowd.

County Republican Chairman Boyd Blair welcomed the candidates to Morgan County and introduced Host as "our next Lt. Governor."

Host then introduced Vermillion and Burns, each of whom spoke briefly.

In his remarks, Host said he was proud to be an Eastern Kentuckian and recalled past visits to Morgan County as a semi-pro-baseball player some years ago. Host is a former professional baseball player.

He expressed his appreciation for the "great turnout" and welcome accorded his campaign party at West Liberty and heaped praise on local party faithful for their unswerving loyalty to the party.

Stated Host, "Morgan has always gone Democratic in the past. But many of us feel that we're going to do better this November—maybe even carry the county."

Host stressed the geographical composition of the GOP slate in November's election. "If you people in Eastern Kentucky want the progress of the last three years to continue, you'd better take note of the geographical composition of our team. Two top GOP candidates are from Eastern Kentucky."

The Democrat slate, he said, boasts not a single member from east of Lexington.

Host said he was proud to be the running-mate of Tom Emberton, the Republican gubernatorial nominee, "proud to be a member of a team that has dedicated itself to providing 200,000 more jobs for Kentuckians and taking the sales tax off food."

The candidates later toured West Liberty's business district on a handshaking tour.

HUTCHINSON IS NAMED GOP CHM. IN MORGAN

BULLETIN

Miss Bonnie Ruth Lewis of Wrigley will serve as Morgan County Chairman for the Emberton-Host campaign. It was announced just before presstime Wednesday evening Miss Lewis, a teacher and Girl Scout leader at Wrigley, is president of the Morgan County Republican Woman's Club.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Charles Hutchinson will serve as Morgan County Chairman of the Emberton-Host Campaign it was announced this week.

Emberton is the nominee for Governor in the November General Election and Host is the nominee for Lt. Governor.

Hutchinson, of West Liberty, is a building contractor and a minister in the Church of Christ.

In accepting the appointment Hutchinson said, "Kentucky must have the kind of leadership that Tom Emberton and Jim Host can bring to the State. They are honest men, who have offered their platforms to the people and have shown they really understand the needs and the concerns of the people," Hutchinson said.

Emberton advocates the removal of the 5 per cent sales tax from groceries and has pledged to make "jobs for Kentuckians" the top priority of his administration. He has set a goal of 200,000 new jobs over the next four years.

The 39-year-old Republican contender said that as he sees it, "There is a great feeling among the people that the nominee (Ford) isn't fairly representing the entire party. I think his interest has been more one of promoting his faction of the party and purging his opposing faction."

Emberton said that there has been no real effort by Ford to bring the party back together in the aftermath of the May primary between Ford and former Gov. Bert T. Combs.

Pointing to what he termed another major weakness of Ford's, Emberton said, "Ford's campaigning now is just as it was during the primary. He touched on the issues such a little bit that I think he was never really able to get to the people. They want to know what the candidate believes, thinks, and feels about the issues. . . not silly things."

Emberton was referring to remarks by Ford that Gov. Louie Nunn is Emberton's "political Godfather," and that Emberton has restyled his hair and lost weight after attending "candidate school."

The Republican contender said the same type of allegations were made by Ford against former Gov. Combs in the primary "and lowered the tone of politics."

Emberton indicated that no matter how heated the November contest becomes he intends to conduct a gentleman's campaign.

Of Ford's 42,000-vote margin over Combs, Emberton said he was not impressed. "I don't think it has any real meaning," he said. "His total vote is lower than that of many candidates in previous Democratic primaries who came in second."

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 15—Democrat county chairman for Wendell Ford have been told there is no room for bickering in the aftermath of the May 28 primary.

State Sen. Walter (Dee) Huddleston of Elizabethtown, chairman of Ford's gubernatorial campaign, said the Ford headquarters "is still getting reports from throughout the state that 'Ford people don't need any bickering' else in this fall campaign."

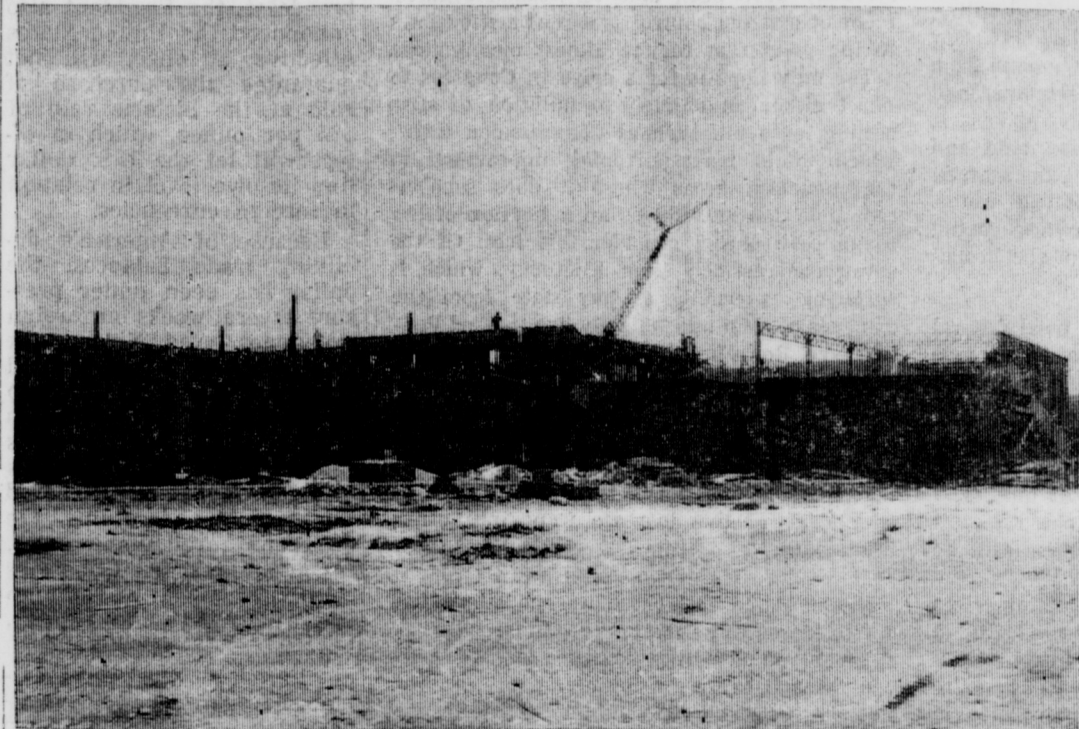

"I want to make it abundantly clear," said Huddleston, "that this is not Wendell Ford's position and it is not the position of the Democratic campaign organization."

Huddleston told Ford county chairmen in a memorandum dated Aug. 11 there is no time "for petty, personal differences. The party is not nor shall it ever be big enough or independent enough that it can exclude anyone."

"It is extremely difficult for me to understand how we will let our Republican opposition needle some of our people to the extent that they have."

Hospital Chain Will Operate New Area Facility At West Liberty

Morgan County's new area hospital, under construction on Wells Hill in West Liberty, will be operated by Appalachian Regional Hospitals, Inc., a non-profit health care system serving communities in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia.

Signing of an agreement, under which ARH leased the hospital building and equipment for 99 years, was announced this week by County Judge Gene Allen in behalf of the county fiscal court, which approved the agreement last month.

ARH will take possession upon completion of the $1,480,000 facility, which is expected in September, 1972. Meanwhile, ARH will supervise the installation of equipment and recruit an administrative staff to operate the hospital.

The Application Regional Hospital system will be the topic of a news feature soon in The Louisville Courier-Journal. According to ARH Vice President Ed Easterly, one focal point of the story will be West Liberty and Morgan County's drive for a much-needed hospital.

Because the hospital is non-profit, all revenues from operations will be applied to operating expenses and to improvements in buildings, equipment and services.

"I think the people of Morgan County are fortunate in getting Appalachian Regional Hospitals to operate our hospital for us," said Judge Allen. "Our hospital and its patients will benefit from the extensive resources and technical knowledge of the ARH system and its professional personnel."

ARH Operates Nine Hospitals

ARH, founded in 1963, operates nine community hospitals, with a total of 1,042 beds, and related health care services in Kentucky, Virginia, and West Virginia. It also maintains nine home health care agencies and two clinics and is building extended care facilities, doctors' office buildings and emergency care centers, including coronary care units.

ARH has residency programs for training medical specialists and hospital administrators. It maintains schools for registered nurses, nurse anesthetists, medical technologists, laboratory assistants and radiology (x-ray, technicians. The system is affiliated with the medical centers of the University of Kentucky and West Virginia University and with the West Virginia University Graduate School of Social Work.

Appalachian Regional Hospitals has 2,900 employees, and more than 330 physicians and dentists serve on its medical staffs. Last year its hospitals served 42,804 inpatients and 76,148 emergency patients.

T. P. Hipkens, president of ARH, issued this statement from the system's headquarters in Lexington, Ky.

"We are grateful for the opportunity to serve the people of Morgan county and neighboring areas. We shall strive to deliver the high quality of health care of (Continued on page eight)

CONTROL OF STRIP MINING

(The Courier Journal)

If Congress wants proof that federal laws are needed, and that state controls on strip mining don't work, it need only look at Kentucky. This state has what still are probably the toughest strip-mine control and reclamation laws in the nation, but they haven't worked. They haven't kept strip miners from turning our mountains into mud heaps and filling our once-pure streams with acid runoff. Our "tough" law hasn't prevented strippers from dumping silt into our fishing streams, and clogging tributaries of our resort lakes. It hasn't kept strippers from pouring mud and rock across public roads, or dotting the scarred countryside with smelly ponds of acid water. And it hasn't kept operators from ravaging land belonging to others by use of the broad-form deed.

To do these things, the states need federal help, because the anti-strip mine forces face not only the coal industry. They also must

The New York Times is increasing its subscription rates by a total of $20 per year for full weekday and Sunday papers via mail. The old rate was $74 a year, and the new rate will be $94 a year. Sunday edition alone will be increased from $39 to $49 a year.

The newspaper noted that everything is expensive these days, the cost of producing a newspaper having gone up accordingly — but that now the cost of mailing is going up again. The Times last increased its mail rates in 1967 — and since then the postal rates have gone up three times.

battle the truckers, railroad and barge lines that haul coal; the steel and power industries that use it, and how the huge, powerful oil industry that is busily buying up the country's coal mines and reserves. These people simply have too much muscle for the average coal-state legislature. They have been able to defeat every move to outlaw the stripping industry. They have been able to weaken enforcement of existing control and reclamation laws to the point that they're almost meaningless.

The only hope is for a drive in Congress to enact either an outright prohibition of strip mining, or a bill such as Congressman Hays', which would make stripping impractical in the mountain areas where it does such irreparable damage. But as an indication of the tough road ahead, consider this fact: Of the seven congressmen from Kentucky, which is suffering as cruelly as any state from the damages of strip mining, only two — Carl Perkins and Ron Mazzoli — have shown any interest in or support for the Hays effort.

"And now, a 142 per cent (postal rate) increase over the next five years has been announced," it was noted by the Times. "The first stage of this increase went into effect this month."

It was stated that there was no alternative but to increase the mail subscription rates.

When you sit with a nice girl for two hours you think it is only a minute. But when you sit on a hot stove for a minute you think it's two hours. That's relativity.

OBSERVATIONS AND PREDICTIONS

RED DOG TOBACCO — Morgan County's usual light tan burley is likely to be a mixed crop this year, the color depending on which side of the county it comes from. Dust from "Red Dog" which strip-mining companies are using to shore up the highways damaged by 70 and 80-ton coal trucks, is spreading over the crop along the Elkfork-Paint Creek and the Smith Creek roads, and farmers are voicing complaints that the "red dog" dust is damaging their crops as well as contaminating the atmosphere. The huge trucks are hauling strip-mined coal from the Laurel Fork of Elkfork and from the Smith Creek areas down the Paint Creek road and on eastward. And the blacktop surfacing has been ruined, so much so that the mining companies have resorted to spreading "red dog" to shore them up and keep them passable. Red dog is the mine residue and slag that has weathered long enough to turn it red by oxidation and acidizing. Once spread on the roads, the heavy trucks break it finer and finer and create clouds of dust which spread over wide areas. Farmers claim it is ruining their crops, particularly their burley and gardens. And the coal trucks churn on and on, 50 or 40 of them making several trips a day.

SMOG IN THE HILLS — This area along with regions to the north and east have been plagued with heavy smog conditions since Tuesday. The National Weather Service said poor atmospheric conditions caused high pollution potentials in Eastern Kentucky, West Virginia, southern Ohio and on eastward. The Weather Service said a temperature inversion was holding pollutants and smog close to the ground, and it warned that burning trash and other pollution causes should be avoided at this time, explaining that the light winds were not sufficient to disperse the smog from the area.

LIMITING POLITICAL ADS — The four candidates for governor in this year's Kentucky election have tentatively agreed not to spend more than 15 cents per eligible voter on campaign advertising. Counting the registered voters, this means each party will limit its campaign advertising to $330,000 this year.

DEEP PIKE WELL FAILS TO YIELD GAS PAY, REPORT

(Floyd County Times)

Eastern Kentucky's hope for a boom in the natural gas business as a result of deep drilling suffered at least a temporary setback recently when a well drilled in Pike county to a depth of almost 13,000 feet showed up dry.

The deep exploration was made as a joint venture of the Weaver Oil and Gas Co., Houston, Texas, and the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company, leaseholder of a vast acreage lying in 14 counties of eastern and southeastern Kentucky.

The Pike county failure, however, is not expected to end the exploration effort. It was said here last week that more drilling will be done — where, it apparently has not been decided. Drilling to such depths is done with rotary drills. One such well costs an estimated quarter of a million dollars. The drilling effort followed seismic testing and geological studies. The new drilling seeks gas deposits below the Clinton formation. Two or three wells have been drilled in this section beyond this depth but the results are not generally known. The goal of the Pike county drilling effort was the Knox formation, which, it is hoped, will produce a new supply of Eastern Kentucky gas.

NIXON FREEZES WAGES, PRICES IN SURPRISE ANTI INFLATION MOVE

Recommends Repeal Of Excise Tax On Cars And Tax Exemptions

In a surprise move to protect the U. S. dollar and combat inflation, President Nixon on Sunday night announced an immediate 90-day freeze on all prices, wages and rents, and also imposed a 10% surcharge on many imports, and recommended repeal of the 7% excise tax on automobiles.

In a hurriedly-arranged broadcast, the President also announced the United States effective at once, will not guarantee the purchase of gold at the historic rate of $35 per ounce, which in effect will let the U. S. dollar find its own level in relation to foreign currencies.

Because of America's declining trade balances, the dollar has been under pressure several weeks on foreign exchanges. And Nixon took advantage of the weekend closing of foreign markets to announce the U. S. Treasury's change in gold policy, thus catching the foreign financiers off guard, as he prepared the way for devaluing the dollar on foreign exchanges.

On the tax front, besides calling for repeal of the auto excise retroactive to Sunday, Nixon:

Proposed that businessmen be allowed rapid first-year tax writeoffs to cover 10 per cent of the cost of investments in new plants and equipment, which he said would create jobs and make domestic industry more competitive internationally. The writeoffs would be in addition to normal depreciation deductions. This plan would be in effect for just one year, retroactive to Sunday, and after that would be replaced by a permanent 5-per-cent quick-writeoff proviso.

STATE SOLONS WILL NOT APPEAL INVALIDATION OF REMAPPING ACT

Appeal Might Cause Invalidation Of State Elections

By Bill Billiter

Courier-Journal Staff Writer FRANKFORT, Ky., Aug. 13 — Kentucky's top legislative officials yesterday voted to abandon legal efforts to save the controversial 1971 Legislative Reapportionment Act. The act, which reapportioned the legislature's 100-member House and 38-member Senate, was ruled unconstitutional last month by U. S. District Judge Mac Swinford. Swinford said population inequalities in the districts violated the U. S. Supreme Court's one man, one vote principle.

The state's Legislature Research Commission (LRC) had defended the constitutionality of the reapportionment act in Swinford's court. But yesterday the LRC, which is composed of the top Democratic and Republican leaders of the General Assembly, unanimously voted not to appeal Judge Swinford's decision to a higher court.

The LRC made its decision at a meeting here after hearing its director, James Fleming, state that an appeal to the U. S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals might involve the risk of statewide elections for all legislators.

Fleming noted that Judge Swinford's decision has allowed the "new" districts in the reapportionment act to remain valid until the 1972 legislature can correct the population differences. But Fleming said if the higher federal court sustains Swinford's decision, the court might also invalidate the results of the May primary elections and require statewide election of all candidates for the legislature. "The suggestion that we settle these constitutional questions is well and good, but we've got some practical considerations," said Fleming.

Guidelines expected House Speaker Julian Carroll, D-Paducah, said he had initially urged that Swinford's decision be appealed in order to get as many reapportionment guidelines as possible from higher federal courts.

But he said yesterday that he was voting not to appeal because "this legal question (about reapportionment) is going to the Supreme Court by other cases... I think we will have additional guidelines by the 1972 session (of the Congress) to advance by one year, to next Jan. 1, the effective date of an already-approved measure to permit a $50 hike in personal exemptions for individual income taxpayers and their dependents.

On his own, Nixon promised to cut federal employment by 5 per cent, impose a six-month freeze on federal pay hikes scheduled for Jan. 1, and take other steps designed to reduce spending by $4.7 billion.

The surprise moves, which Nixon claimed were the most comprehensive in four decades in the economic sphere, were viewed as the President's reply to Democratic critics who contend the state of the economy — not Vietnam — will be the major political issue in the 1972 election.

But Democrats for many months have called for a wage-price freeze. Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark, the key tax man in Congress, last month proposed a tax credit, tax reductions and a wage-price freeze.

After Nixon's Sunday broadcast, Mills termed the President's new economic plan as excellent and commented, "It looks like he has been following somebody's advice." Mills, who heads the House Ways and Means Committee, predicted his committee will approve Nixon's recommendations for investment tax credits.

Other Congressional leaders for the most part likewise expressed approval of Nixon's wage-rent-price freeze and other economic proposals, although some said he should have acted sooner. And on Monday stocks on the New York Exchange rose 32.9 points per share, the biggest single day's advance since January of last year. Some $25 billion in stocks changed hands on the sharp upsurge.

Rep. Perkins Plan Meeting On Jobs

PRESTONSBURG, KY. — Provisions of the Emergency Employment Act will be discussed Aug. 24 at a meeting for area community officials, according to Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-7th.

Mr. Perkins scheduled the meeting at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park near here. The act, recently signed by President Nixon, authorizes $2.25 billion for creation of jobs in times of high unemployment.

The act is designed to meet unfulfilled needs for public services in such fields as health care, environmental quality, recreation, education, public safety, and street and park maintenance.

ANOTHER DIES IN TRAILER HOME FIRE

Another person lost his life in a mobile home fire in the Tri-State area this week. He was William Clayton Johnson, 68-year old retired oil well driller, whose trailer home burned early Tuesday in rural Boyd county near Catlettsburg. Johnson's wife escaped through a back door when heat wakened the aged couple, but the husband started toward the front door but was overcome by heat and died in the burning trailer. A few weeks ago a trailer fire in Morehead suffocated James Arthur Fielding, 42.

LEASE AND TRANSFER ARE NOW AVAILABLE TO BURLEY GROWERS

Burley tobacco growers are being reminded that farm marketing quotas may now be leased and transferred to other farms. This new provision will enable growers to assemble more economic units for Burley tobacco production, or to discontinue production and lease their farm quotas, according to Paul L. Fuqua, Chairman of the Kentucky Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.

Lease and transfer provisions already apply to other types of tobacco.

Interested producers should check with their County ASCS office on transfer procedure, said Mr. Fuqua.

Lease and transfer of Burley tobacco quotas will be permitted among farms located within the same county. Pounds for transfer to any one farm are limited to the smaller of 15,000 pounds or 50 percent of a farm's crop-land, times the farm yield, minus the burley quotas before transfer.

While transfers for the 1971 crop can be made up to February 15, 1972, Burley producers were urged by Mr. Fuqua to make their transfer agreements prior to the opening of the markets if possible.

Any owner with a Burley tobacco quota may transfer the quota, within limitations, up to five years, but the transfer must be to another Burley farm within the same county. To be effective, all transfers must be approved by the County ASC Committee.

Burley growers who experience crop losses this year have two alternatives for managing their unused quota. A grower may elect not to use the quota this year and it will be added to next year's farm quota, or he may lease it to another farm.

Before the local markets open, tobacco producers will be asked to indicate whether Burley was planted on their farms, and whether a pesticide containing DDT or TDE was used on the tobacco after it was planted in the field. Support loans cannot be made to producers who used a pesticide containing DDT or TDE on their Burley or other tobacco crops.

Marketing cards will be issued to Burley growers who indicate they have tobacco from their farms available for marketing. Producers who expect to sell at more than one warehouse during the same period should request more than one marketing card from their County ASCS office.

NEWSPAPER LOSS AFFECTS ENTIRE COMMUNITY

(Editors Note: The following article was written by S. S. Talbert of the University of Mississippi School of Journalism. It appeared in the Elizabethtown News.)

When, for one reason or another, the newspaper of a community has been suspended business has always suffered.

In various cities when studies have been made on the effect of newspaper suspensions, retail trade in all lines has dropped approximately 25 per cent. This was an immediate result. There is no way of estimating the net loss to a community which would result from an indefinite suspension of local newspapers.

Of course merchants have tried all kinds of substitutes when newspaper advertising was not available. But handbills, circulars, and other media could not do the job which newspapers were doing.

There are good reasons why other advertising outlets could not replace the local newspaper. Newspaper advertising is far more than printed space.

The merchant who buys newspaper advertising secures important extras which may be worth more than the immediate results of his advertising message.

The newspaper advertiser is associated with an institution which has been built on public confidence. The retailer has assurance that his advertising message will be welcomed into nearly every local home when it appears in the newspaper.

Prestige and public confidence are the most important assets a newspaper possesses. The qualities are slowly cultivated and carefully nourished by the newspaper. They are among the benefits which are transferred to newspaper advertisers.

No advertiser can buy a substitute for the public confidence in the local newspaper which is demonstrated every time a subscription is renewed.

4 OUTSIDERS ARRESTED ON FARM WHILE HARVESTING MARIJUANA

PAINTSVILLE, KY. — Three men and a woman from Ohio caught harvesting a crop of hemp on a farm near Stambaugh in Johnson County and preparing to manufacture it into marijuana were arrested Tuesday by five State Police troopers.

Charged with illegal possession of marijuana and illegal manufacture without a license or permit, by virtue of growing it, were two Canton, Ohio, men, a woman with a Kent, Ohio address, and a former Cincinnati man, who is the farm's owner.

The hemp, when converted into marijuana, possibly would have brought $200,000, officers said.

FURNISHED FOR THE CHILD

A Day-Care Center is a place where the preschool child has an opportunity to learn through play with other children and appropriate toys and materials, where his mental, emotional, and physical growth is fostered, and where the nutritional food, health supervision, medical care, rest, and activities are provided as needed. This is done by a staff especially trained to meet the growth and needs of the child. It is a place where parents, for several hours each day, can leave their children and thus share their care and upbringing with the staff of the center.

A Day-Care Center may also be a place where the school-age child goes for recreational activities and for adult supervision he needs during some of his out-of-school hours. For a child of this age, too, growth needs are met by the staff, trained to provide the amount of supervision and types of activities appropriate to his age. Food, health supervision, and rest, as well as activities are made available as needed. The program for the Day-Care Center for the school-age child supplements both the home and the school.

AUGUST - THE MONTH OF TRANSITION

By Neville Shackelford
UK College of Agriculture

LXINGTON, KY. — During the dusty days of August become evident the first premonitions and stirrings of fall on the landscape. It is a month of transition when the fresh greens of hastening spring and summer begin to fade into the reds, the browns, and the golds of maturity. With each passing day the green foliage of the fields and woodlands gradually lose succulence, and the colors of age show up in the russets and browns of ripening fruit and in the curling and crisping of leaf and blade.

August is the month when the wildflowers of summer give over to those of autumn, when tall ironweeds in the meadows put forth their madder purple blossoms and the white rosettes of Queen Anne's Lace turn brown and curl up at the edges to form cups wherein spiders lurk to ambush flies.

Then there is the strongly-scented tansy with its golden, bitter button blossoms and fernlike leaves which, in the early fall, were used to keep flies away from fresh killed meat. Also in every fence corner are tall goldenrods struggling for standing room and lifting their yellow plumes to the sun.

There is the cardinal flower with its tall spikes flaming red in the swamps and the purplish flowered dittany along back country roadsides with which, according to ancient Indian legend, deer and wild goats wounded by arrows healed themselves.

August is the month of Jeweled, the medication of injured serpents; of wild blue ageratum; of purple milkweed, self-heal, and dusky jungles of ragweed; of bursting spikes of broadleaf cattails casting clouds of white-tufted seed into the air and into the pond at their feet.

For many forms of plant life and bird life and animal life, August is the month of waiting. It is the month when all nature seems poised on the crest of the wave of summer and sits waiting until the wave curls and breaks and then, in slow slide, slips downward into the placid seas of autumn.

Rest is the order of the month for most of the things of nature. The time for sprouting and other forms of procreation are over, and now comes the time of feeding and storing away in nut and rind and husk for leaner times to come.

The water level of the pond sinks lower in August. The cool rill in the back pasture which sung so merrily in the months before has silenced its voice to a whisper and, along the still, dark pools of the woodland stream, herons stalk young frogs and minnows which were hatched during the turbulent days of spring. Gone are the songs of the tanager, the catbird, and the thrasher, and the sparkling tide that was summer ebbs and flows on the currents of time while the patient land waits and reflects upon what is and what has been since the world began.

In August even the fearful ruthless winds of June and July seem to succumb to the lassitudes of the month. From time to time they awaken to strum a few melancholy bars on the power and telephone lines crossing the river or to slightly trouble the glassy surface of the ponds. Then they retire to indulge in fitful slumber in the pine forests beyond the back forty.

August is the month of katydids, mole crickets, and other insects whose incessant voices combine into dreamy nocturnes. It is the month that brings the first uneasy stirrings of the migratory instinct to many birds and the end of life to fireflies that through the long summer lifted their gleams upward in the dusk.

With the poppy as its special flower and the sardonyx as its gem, August is a good month. It is the month when all nature starts reaching fruition.

Kentucky Grand Champion Walking Horse, Tarquin, owned by the J. J. Adkins Stables of Elliott County, ridden and trained by Mose Oppenheimer. The 4-year-old stallion was judged winner of the Grand Championship Stake in Louisville Aug. 7.

J. J. Adkins Stables' Tarquin State Walking Horse Champ

Trainer Predicts Tarquin Will Win World Championship

Tarquin, a 4-year-old stud, owned by J. J. Adkins Stables of Little Sandy and trained and ridden by Mose Oppenheimer, won the Grand Championship Stake in the seventh annual Kentucky Walking Horse Celebration held in the outdoor ring of the State Fairgrounds at Louisville Saturday night, Aug. 7.

And following the Championship Stakes, Oppenheimer told reporters confidently, "This horse is going to win the walking horse championship of the world."

The World Walking Horse

Celebration will be held Aug. 27 through Sept. 5 at Shelbyville, Tenn., and Tarquin will be among seven Tennessee Walkers from the Adkins Stables that will be entered in the competition.

In addition to Tarquin, Oppenheimer has particularly high hopes for two other entries from the Adkins Stables: Democrat's Copy 68 in the 3-year-old class, and B. Major's Gal, which he says should easily place in the top 10 finalists in the World championship mare competition at Shelbyville.

B. Major's Gal was one of two other horses from the Adkins Stables which placed high in the state celebration at Louisville. On Friday, Mrs. Sue Adkins, of Pikeville whose father-in-law owns the stables, rode B. Major's Gal to a blue ribbon in the Ladies Amateur class.

The other Adkins stable entry to win a blue ribbon was Ebony's Paper Tiger, which was named champion in the Plantation Walking Horse class, with John Redwine of Sandy Hook in the saddle.

Among the people making their way to Tarquin's stall following the grand champion's victory was former Gov. Bert T. Combs. "I don't qualify as an expert," said Combs, "but in my book, Tarquin is as good as I've seen."

Prior to winning the state grand championship, Tarquin was judged the 3-year-old champion at the Southern Walking Horse Championships last year in Montgomery, Ala. Of her win on B. Major's Gal in the Ladies Amateur class, Mrs. Adkins told a reporter, "I had ponies when I was growing up, and my husband, Johnny, liked horses, too. So, we saw a horse we liked and bought him."

That was the start that eventually led Sue to the blue ribbon in Louisville. "We bought just pleasure horses, and then John Jack (Sue's father-in-law, J. J. Adkins of Pikeville) started buying," Sue said in continuing her narrative.

"He came down to the stable one day and liked one horse in particular. That was Deacon. He was just a colt then — he was a walking horse. So he got into the business then."

That was the start of J. J. Adkins' stable in Sandy Hook, Ky. "We all live in Pikeville — just the barn is in Sandy Hook," Sue explained.

Sue began riding in shows only last year, and then in pleasure horse classes. This year, she's riding walking horses for her father-in-law. And successfully, too.

In three shows this year, Sue has taken two blue ribbons and one third place. Her first blue ribbon came on B. Major's Gal, the same horse she showed in Louisville.

She had some tense moments in gaining her second blue. After the 14 entrants in the class had completed working their horses the first time, the judges ordered six horses to the center of the ring. They were assured consideration in the final judging.

Sue and B. Major's Gal were among the seven contestants (one had been excused earlier) who were to tour the outside of the ring to show again their quality. However, when three more finalists were sent to center ring, Sue and B. Major's Gal were included.

Then came the final showing, judging and Sue's victory. "Sometimes the judges put the one they're going to tie (award a ribbon) for first, second and third on the outside. This time, I didn't know for sure. I was just going to ride it the best I could," Sue said later.

The attractive brunette added, "I couldn't have done it without him," and pointed to Mose Oppenheimer, who trains B. Major's Gal.

The Adkins Stables, which currently has some 45 Tennessee Walking Horses, last week concluded a deal in which the first known Elliott County walking horse was sold outside the continental United States. Oppenheimer said Angel's Blue Boogie, a dun stallion was sold to Ralph and Ruth Craddock of Brentford, Ontario, Canada for a price "in four figures." The Craddocks, who plan to start a walking horse stable, plan to use the Elliott County horse for promotional purposes, and as initial breeding stock.

DEMS. SET 7TH DIST. RALLY AT JACKSON 21ST

FRANKFORT, Ky. — State Democratic Campaign Chairman Sen. Walter "Dee" Huddleston has announced plans for a Seventh District rally of the Democratic Party to be held on Saturday, August 21.

The rally, expected to draw Democratic supporters from the 22-county District, begins at 2:00 p.m. in the Breathitt County Coliseum in Jackson.

Democratic gubernatorial nominee Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford, House Speaker Julian Carroll, candidate for lieutenant governor, and other Party nominees will be on hand for the rally. The public is invited to attend and meet the Democratic nominees.

FOURTH GOVERNOR

Kentucky's fourth governor was Christopher Greenup, soldier, former Virginian, and one of the first two Kentucky representatives in Congress after Kentucky became a state. He became governor in 1804.

NEWS SUMMARY

By Gary G. Huddleston

RUNOFF — Detailed standards for impounding and treating runoff water from surface mines will be the subject of a public hearing 10 a.m. Sept. 17 in the State Health Department auditorium in Frankfort. The proposed standards, drawn by the state Reclamation Commission, would seek to limit acidity and sedimentation.

BOUNDARY — The boundary between Kentucky and Illinois at Dog Island, in the Ohio River near Smithland, is the subject of a court suit filed by Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott. The suit claims the island, future site of twin 1200-foot locks, was once an Illinois peninsula and that its southern tucky has jurisdiction over the perimeter is the state line. Kentucky to the low-water mark on the Illinois side.

CHILDREN — The Task Force on Exceptional Children would up a two-day meeting at Lake Barkley State Park with agreement to recommend three legislative proposals to increase state support for education of exceptional children. Categories of exceptional children include those who are intellectually gifted, the retarded and the physically and environmentally handicapped.

MEDICAL — State Health Commissioner William McElwain blames complacency among Kentuckians as a main obstacle to providing adequate medical care to citizens of the commonwealth. McElwain told the Frankfort Rotary Club there were only 65 reported cases of measles in the state last year when vaccination was heavy. This year immunizations have dropped off, and 961 cases of measles have been reported already.

CLOSING — Jefferson Circuit Judge Marvin Sternberg ruled that Kentucky's Sunday closing law is constitutional, agreeing with the state Court of Appeals that the law's faults are correctable "only by legislative action rather than judicial."

ARMCO'S ASHLAND PLANT TO IDLE FOUR SECTIONS

ASHLAND, Aug. 13 — Armco Steel Corp. notified employees Thursday that four sections of the Ashland Works will be shut down next week. Armco indicated more layoffs will occur.

A newsletter from the company explained that the basic oxygen, hot strip, blooming mill and foundry will be idled "to hold the line on an inventory buildup" at the plant.

More than 900 workers were laid off recently and another 300 are due to be furloughed this week.

"More layoffs undoubtedly will take place," commented Works Manager S. J. MacMullan.

He indicated Armco expects to ship only 25,000 to 30,000 tons of sheet steel and coil this month, down from the average of 102,410 tons per month for the past seven months.

Armco blamed the decline on the fact that many customers stockpiled large quantities of steel in anticipation of a nationwide steel strike. Still other customers switched to using imported steel, also in anticipation of the strike, which did not take pace due to a last minute settlement between steel management and steel unions.

WORDS OF WISDOM

Not by revolution but by evolution are all things accomplished in permanency. —The AMORC

"FARMERS LUNG" IN CITY OFFICES

HEALTH FOR ALL Breathing in organic dust can set off a respiratory disorder called "farmer's lung." The disease is not exclusively rural by any means.

Spore-laden dust from moldy hay can trigger the disorder. So can the droppings of birds such as pigeons. But more and more cases have been reported recently among office workers. The disease is on the increase.

Exhaustive investigations at the University of Wisconsin Medical Center have uncovered mold growing in some warm, wet air conditioners. The spores were spewed from the air ducts throughout entire office buildings.

The spores penetrate deep into the lungs and inflame the area where the exchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide occurs. Eventually, the body becomes starved for oxygen. The first symptoms resemble pneumonia — chills, fever, cough, and especially, shortness of breath. The much more serious chronic phase can lead to a breathlessness so severe that the person cannot walk across the room. Loss of weight is characteristic of both acute and chronic phases.

Continued exposure to the offending substance can lead to progressive lung damage and eventual lung failure. Better ventilation can help remove the substances; and sometimes it is possible to wet down moldy material. Farmers who find it difficult to avoid exposure to moldy hay often take special steroids to ward off the disease.

At the University of Wisconsin, researchers have seen a number of similar lung conditions which are expressions of the same basic disease mechanism. Maple bark stripper's disease, pigeon breeder's disease, bagassosis, and mushroom worker's disease are some of the exotic names. But the Wisconsin clinicians put them all together under this single term: hypersensitivity pneumonitis. Pneumonitis means an inflammation of the lungs.

For more information about lung disorders, contact the Kentucky TB and RD Association, 4100 Churchman Ave., Louisville, Kentucky 40215.

LIBERTY AND LAW

Liberty is a right. But it does not give one the right to overturn the rights of another, and the law does not allow it. Liberty without law would be a myth.

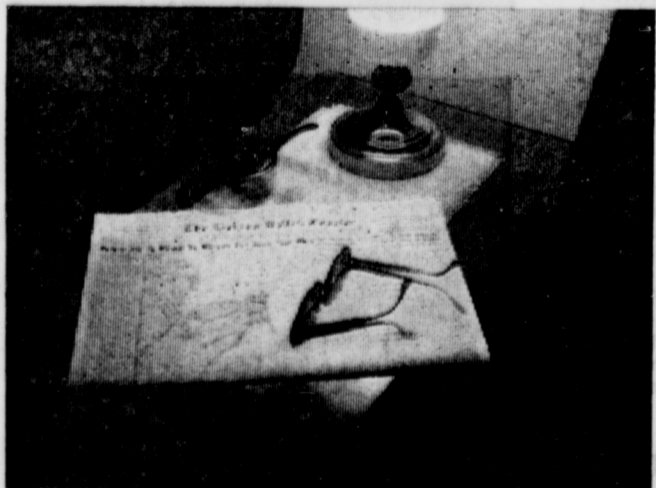

Maybe Your Advertising Should Linger Longer

A LOT OF ADVERTISING DOESN'T

Every week 2,019 Morgan homes get The Courier on Thursday and they keep it around — keep it to refer to dates, meetings, sales, and the hard facts they need to know about the County and its affairs.

Yes, they keep THE COURIER around the home longer . . . that is unless a neighbor borrows it.

CAN YOU THINK OF A BETTER PLACE TO HAVE YOUR ADVERTISING?

(The Courier's press run is 3,750, and 2,019 go into Morgan homes, the remainder to former residents and service men).

COMPUTER MATH SUCCESSFUL IN MORGAN COUNTY

Pgm. To Continue
In County Schools
This School Year

Results of the Computer Assisted Instruction (CAI) math program which has been in operation since March 13 in two Morgan County Schools indicate that the program has been highly successful.

According to Superintendent Walton Jones, the evaluation data indicates that 88% of the local elementary students involved increased their math skills. Morgan County had 152 children in the program at Crockett and Wrigley Elementary Schools.

A total of 2,440 students participated throughout Eastern Kentucky. The regional results indicate that CAI-math students averaged a five-month gain in math skills during a three-month period, when measured by a nationally standardized achievement test.

The computerized math program has also allowed students to gain an average of five months in reading skills during its three-month operation.

In the CAI approach to learning, each child is given work precisely suited to his ability, and he is allowed to progress at his own rate. After the specially-trained teacher explains a math concept in the classroom, the student goes to a teletype terminal located in his school to drill and practice on that concept. The terminal is connected via telephone lines to a computer in Ashland where the results are tabulated and sent to the teacher.

The attitudes of teachers, students, and parents involved in CAI-math in Morgan County were overwhelmingly favorable toward the program. The CAI program is administered through the Eastern Kentucky Development Corporation, a regional agency based in Ashland through which Eastern Kentucky school districts acquire federally-financed creative and innovative educational programs. Computerized math will continue in the Morgan County schools this fall.

Kennedy Memorial Library Notes

None of us ever take the time to be thankful and happy that we can see the wonderful world around us, and that we can read whenever we want to, whatever we want to read.

We seem to take for granted that this is our given right. But, to someone who is losing the ability to see as well as they used to do this is a tragic feeling. But, to make the ability not to read as well because of vision loss a little less tragic there are a number of large print books available from your Kennedy Memorial Library.

Here is a list of several of them: LARRAMEE'S RANCH, by Max Brand, THIS ROUGH MAGIC, Mary Stewart, THE DOLLMAKER, Harriett Arnow, THIS WAS THE PRESIDENT, JOHN F. KENNEDY, Tony Spiva, THE DAUGHTER OF TIME, Josephine Tey, TO KILL A MOCKING BIRD, Harper Lee and TRAVELS WITH CHARLIE, John Steinbeck.

This is just a few of the many large print books that adults will find for their reading pleasure.

A service also available from your Kennedy Memorial Library is application blanks for the TALKING BOOKS AND TALKING BOOK MACHINES. These are available free to anyone in the state of Kentucky. If you are physically handicapped and cannot hold a book with ease to read or if you are blind, then this service is available to you. If anyone in Morgan County knows of a friend or neighbor who would benefit from this service call 743-4151 and your county librarian will be more than happy to supply you with complete information.

THE AMERICAN'S CREED

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a Republic; a sovereign Nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, inseparable, established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies." —William Tyler Page

IN MEMORY OF PAP

Pap, you labored and you toiled and you grieved and you quarried. You went to bed and you snored, and you snored till the old clock larned and the next thing I heard was "Get up, gals. Grab them hoes and get that file."

The hoes we grabbed and the file we got, and up the hill, about five miles, we stopped to get our breath and we heard Pap say, "Get up, Moll. Gee haw. Get to work, gals."

We worked and we worked till the dinner bell rang and we heard Pap say, "Let's go, gals; it's dinner time." We went to the house and the snack we ate. We sat down to rest and we heard Pap say, "Let's go, gals, them taters to dig. The taters we dug and carried them in. We stopped to get a drink and we heard Pap say, "Let's go, gals, them sweet taters to dig."

The sweet taters we dug and carried them in. We started to bed and we heard Pap say, "Let's go, gals, and sort that corn. Grab that lantern and wash that globe. The lantern we grabbed and the globe we washed, and up to the barn to sort that corn. We sorted that corn and threw it back. We went to the house and layed on a bed as hard as the floor, and all we could hear was Pap a snorin'; he snored and he snored till the old clock larned. Then we heard Pap say, "Get up, gals, it's breakfast time. The breakfast we cooed, the dishes we washed, the beds we made, the cows we milked and the milk we strained."

Then we heard Pap say, "Let's go, gals. It's work time. . . ."

This was our life —gals.

LOCATED: Approximately 4 miles North of Bethel on the Little Flat Road and Licking River 11 miles from Flemingsburg, Ky. and approximately 17 miles from Mt. Sterling.
MONDAY, AUGUST 30 — 10:30 a. m.

This farm has approximately 700 to 800 acres of fresh new grass that has just been sown in the last 3 to 5 years. The Little Flat Road is newly blacktopped and about 50% of the farm lays on each side and there is approximately 2 miles of Licking River joining the farm. This farm is well watered by river, plenty of big springs, ponds and lakes. Practically all can be worked over with tractors. Grows the best crops, especially tobacco and grass. One side of this farm is strong lime stone land. The fencing is above average. The tobacco can all be irrigated and is every year.

THERE IS A REAL PLACE FOR CAMP SITES ON THIS 2 MILES OF RIVER, THE WATER IS DEEP JOINING THIS FARM

There is a grade A dairy being operated now on part of the farm. Beef cows and calves are on the other part. This farm has electricity, telephones, blacktop road, milk route, mail route and thousands of good yellow locust post now growing. Improvements will consist of 5 houses, two of these are modern, 9 barns from 4 bents to 8 bent, 1 silo, 18' x 40', 2 large hay sheds, practically all buildings under metal roof, 5 barns have electric, plenty of good stripping rooms, some barns are now being used for stock and tobacco combined, several outbuildings and corn cribs, practically all buildings are in good condition. This is a good size acreage all in one unit and a good money maker.

When money seems to be losing its value at the rate of 5 to 7 cents per dollar a year, land has to be a good investment.

This farm will be sold on easy terms — 10% down day of sale, 19% more with deed and possession, balance in 1-2-3-4-5 years. Possession March 1, 1972, except feeding cattle probably to April 1.

This farm is now owned by three people and some of the owners have become engaged in other business is reason for selling.

It will be sold for the high dollar. This farm is now ready with all of this new grass to make one of the finest cattle ranches in the state.

THE FARM WILL BE SHOWN BY APPOINTMENT ONLY!

ODDS & ENDS

BY EARL KINNER, JR

Dangerous Work

This big 46-inch rattlesnake is one of three killed in northern Menifee county recently by members of the surveying crew of Earl V. Tredway Consulting Engineers of West Liberty, which is presently surveying land for the U. S. Forestry Service near the mouth of Beaver.

Holding the rattler is Roger Johnson, chairman of the six-man surveying crew. With him is another chairman, Earl Elliott holding the pistol with which he killed the rattler, firing cartridges loaded with shot. The snake had 11 rattles and a button.

The crew killed this rattler and a copperhead Monday while surveying land that adjoins government property on Oak Hollow near the mouth of Beaver.

And last Friday, the 13th, the crew killed another rattler and eight copperheads. Earlier they had killed another rattler.

Johnson fans the rattlesnake skins and has enough now to make three belts. The surveying crewmen carry pistols loaded with shot.

Polluted air serves many purposes as well as pure air does, as, for examples, it is used as transmission of power in operating tools for ripping up newly paved streets; it makes possible the use of suction pumps; it is used to inflate tires, and it keeps our bodies from exploding.

Despite what you think, there is always someone who is experiencing a tougher pull through life than you are.

NEW HOSPITAL

Hospital Will Serve 30,000 People

The hospital, with 25 acute-care beds and 25 extended care beds, is designed to serve an area with 30,000 residents, all within 30 to 40 minutes' driving time. The area embraces all of Morgan County and parts of Elliott, Johnson, Magoffin, Wolfe, Menifee, and Rowan counties. Hipkens said that the new hospital would seek to develop a working relationship with the St. Claire Medical Center at Morehead, the Appalachian Regional Hospital at Hazard, and the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington.

Signing of the agreement, which will bring West Liberty's hospital into the ARH system, followed months of negotiations by the fiscal court and a hospital advisory committee headed by Dr. M. L. Peyton. Judge Allen signed for the county, and Jay G. Coberly, executive vice-president of ARH, signed for the health care system.

Fontaine Banks, Jr., special assistant to ARH President Hipkens, said that initially the hospital would employ approximately 89 persons and would have a payroll of at least $250,000 a year.

He stated that ARH hoped to find 60 to 70 per cent of the employees in or near Morgan county. Positions the hospital will need to fill include admissions clerks, supply clerks, business office clerks, housekeeping aides, cooks and dietary aides, maintenance technicians, medical aides, registered nurses and licensed practical nurses. Local people who can qualify will be trained at ARH's expense for a variety of positions. Specialized personnel not available in Morgan County will be recruited from other ARH hospitals and elsewhere.

Applications for employment are available in Judge Allen's office.

An administrator with experience in the ARH system will be chosen to supervise operation of the Morgan County hospital.

The hospital's staff of M. D.'s will consist of local and area doctors from the counties served by the hospital. In the event local doctors feel that an outside doctor is needed for special duty, ARH will provide another

M. D. at the request of the regular staff doctors.

The $1,480,667 cost of the new hospital was underwritten by a Hill-Burton grant of $591,667, a grant of $464,000 from the Appalachian Regional Commission, and $425,000 in a county bond issue.

Citizens' Generosity Saved Project

But the county's two-year drive to secure federal and state approval of the hospital project almost came to naught when shortly before the project was to be approved for construction it was discovered that previously-allotted county, state, and federal funds were insufficient to purchase a site on which to locate the new facility.

However, after the need and the reason for the shortage was explained to them, Morgan County and area citizens contributed more than $30,000 during a nine-hour radio marathon with which to purchase the $26,000 site. Donations later climbed past $40,000, with all above the land cost being set aside for use as initial operating funds. (Under the agreement with ARH, the county must provide a percentage of the first year's operating costs.)

Had it not been for this generous outpouring of money by area residents, hospital planners say, construction of the hospital would certainly have been delayed, perhaps indefinitely.

Six of the nine ARH hospitals are in Kentucky, at Harlan, Hazard, McDowell, Middlesboro, South Williamson, and Whitesburg. The others are located at Beckley and Man, W. Va., and Wise, Va.

Jim Templeton

MORGAN NATIVE JOINS GATEWAY AREA DEVELOPMENT DIST. STAFF

A Morgan County native, who has been recently associated with the National Farmers Union as Regional Director for the Northeast United States, has now become one of five assistants to Calvin Schneider, executive director of the Gateway Area Development District at Owingsville.

He is Jim Templeton, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Mack Templeton of Florress. During an interview recently, Mr. Templeton, whose home is in Morehead, said, "One of the reasons I came here was because this is by home area. If I can be of any help here at all—that's what I want to do. I want the area to benefit by any knowledge I may have."

The new Gateway assistant is a former mayor of Lebanon, Ohio where he lived for some time and later was elected county auditor. From 1963 to 1966, he worked with the Council of Southern Mountains and became an on-the-job training specialist.

After moving to Morehead where he was area director of the Northeast Kentucky Area Development Council, he was appointed by President Johnson to the Presidential staff as assistant director for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

After being in Washington, D.C., Mr. Templeton, his wife and one of their three sons are again living in Morehead. A second son is a member of the police force in Ohio and another is associated with the YMCA in Florence.

In his present position, Mr. Templeton said that he would, "sort of help in overall efforts, and concentrate with various agencies at local, State and Federal level."

1,845 MORGAN COUNTY RESIDENTS BENEFIT FROM SOCIAL SECURITY

Aug. 14 Is Social Security Program's 36th Anniversary

August 14th will be the 36th anniversary of the signing of the Social Security Act, according to Thomas B. Thompson, Ashland district manager for social security. When the bill first went into effect, it protected only workers in commerce and industry. The original idea behind the social security law was to have workers save part of their income during their working years so they could be sure of an income when they retired.

Congress soon found that less of income due to retirement was only one of the major insecurities facing Americans and their families. The law was then changed so that payments could be made to dependents of retired and deceased workers. The law was later amended to include protection for disabled workers and their families.

In 1965 Congress again amended the law to provide Medicare protection for persons 65 and over. Thompson stated that over the years the law has been expanded to cover most working Americans. Today, nine out of ten workers and their families can expect payments at retirement, death, or disability, and Medicare protection at 65.

Each month over 26 million beneficiaries get approximately 2 1/2 billion dollars in social security benefits. Right here in Morgan County 1,845 social security beneficiaries get $124,000 a month.

Many of these beneficiaries, according to Thompson, filed their claims by telephone without ever leaving the comfort of their homes. The Ashland number to call for this service, is 325-7666.

NEWSPAPER BEST FOR ADS AND NEWS, ACCORDING TO SURVEY

Persons who want to read about events which interest them, want more details on complicated stories or need advertising they can trust turn to newspapers rather than television, the Bureau of Advertising said Wednesday.

The bureau, in a booklet entitled "News About the News Media," said the statistics on public use of the media were obtained in a probability sample of 2,023 men and women 18 years old and over. The study was done by Opinion Research Corp.

The bureau said newspapers were favored by persons with higher education and better incomes. Newspapers were also favored three-to-one for advertising facts that can be trusted, the bureau said.

The booklet said 50 per cent of all respondents to the question named newspapers as the medium in which they would be most likely to find details about stories in which they are interested, compared to 46 per cent to those who named television. The bureau said the figure rose to 56 per cent for those with high school diplomas. Among those with family incomes above $10,000 the figure was 55 per cent.

For complicated news, 36 per cent of the respondents named newspapers as the preferred medium compared to 19 per cent who mentioned television.

In reply to the question about where they might find advertising to give them the facts they need, 34 per cent replied newspapers and nine per cent named television.

Surgeon Says Little Leaguers Throwing Too Much Too Early

SAN FRANCISCO — Boys who pitch on Little League baseball teams should be switched every two innings to stop a rising number of permanent elbow and shoulder injuries, Dr. Joel E. Adams, a bone surgeon and team doctor for San Bernardino city schools and junior college, said Wednesday.

What's more, curve ball pitching should be abolished on the Little League level, and no practice throwing should be permitted.

Dr. Adams contends that too much pitching at early ages often causes boys' arm muscles to pull on the growth centers of the bone, which are not yet closed.

Too much pitching "invites trouble rather than perfection in this age group," he declared.

Dr. Adams tested 80 pitchers in a study in Southern California and said he found all had separated and fragmented bone centers, plus accelerated arm growth that could be painful for the rest of their lives.

Boys under 12 should never pitch more than two innings a game. Those 12-17 should pitch no more than three innings, Dr. Adams said. They now hurl six and seven innings.

MORE CORN, LESS TOBACCO IS ESTIMATED

WASHINGTON — The U. S. Department of Agriculture predicted last week that Kentucky's corn crop would reach 80,920,000 bushels this year, an increase of 64 per cent over 1970. The burley tobacco crop was estimated at 37.8 million pounds for the state, a drop of 3 per cent. Production for the eight state belt was listed at 544.7 million pounds compared to 560.5 million pounds last year.

The department described this year's corn crop as being in excellent condition but warned that leaf blight continues to be a threat and probably can be found in all counties.

Leaf blight was responsible for the low 1970 harvest of only 49.4 million bushels in Kentucky.

The department said the yield should be 70 bushels per acre this year compared to 59 last year and 77 in 1969.

The burley yield was estimated at 2,600 pounds on 143,000 acres. In 1970 harvested acreage totaled 142,000 and the yield averaged 2,710 pounds.

The department said the crop is in fair condition, adding that extensive rain damaged some crops and drowned out plants in low spots.

Soybean Record

As for the soybean crop, the department said it should total 22,156,000 bushels, the highest on record and 47 per cent above the previous record set last year.

Yield per acre was set at 29 bushels, which would be a new high, as would be the 764,000 harvested acres.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Farm workers may lose social security coverage if their earnings are not properly reported, Thomas B. Thompson, District Manager of the Ashland social security office, said this week.

Thomas explained that wages for farm labor are credited in a different way than wages from other industries. He said that a farm worker must meet one of two requirements in order to obtain social security credit for his earnings.

One of these requirements is that the worker must earn at least $150.00 from the same employer during a calendar year. If he does not earn this much he may receive credit if he works for the same employer on 20 or more days during a calendar year. The work must be for cash wages. In order to get credit on the "days worked" requirements he must be working on a time basis, such as hourly rate, instead of a piece-rate basis.

Thompson urged farm employers to keep accurate records and furnish accurate and timely reports. He said that the summer harvest season provides the only earnings many workers have for social security credits. These credits are most important to qualify the workers for social security benefits.

Farm workers and their employers are invited to call Ashland 325-7666 for answers to questions they may have concerning farm reporting. The Ashland office is open Monday through Friday from 8:45 to 5 p.m.
